

WERE BURNED IN STRANGE MANNER

Two Alta Miners the Victims.

Enveloped in Flames While Exploring a Drain Tunnel.

Can of Gasoline Four Years Old Was Ignited by Their Candles and Exploded.

With hair and eyebrows singed and blistering hands and faces Foreman Williams of the Albion mine and John Hatfield staggered out of an old tunnel on the Albion property at Alta yesterday afternoon.

Opened a Tin Can. They were victims of a most extraordinary and unexpected accident. They went into the tunnel to see how rapidly the water was draining away. Back in the hole they found a large tin can. It seemed to be full of something, and they opened it. The air was filled with the fumes of gasoline and the candles which the men carried ignited the gas. There was a burst of flame which enveloped the explorers and scorched their skin. Their clothing took fire and they threw themselves into the running water to put the fire out.

Was Four Years Old. Subsequent investigation showed that the gasoline must have been in the tunnel for at least four years.

Register today. Last opportunity until Nov. 1. May be too late then. Do it today.

ADVERTISEMENT.

Republicans, Register Today.

If you are not registered you can't vote for Roosevelt. An entirely new registration this year. If in doubt as to where to register ring up Republican headquarters Bell 'phone 692 or Ind. 2781.

DR. TALMAGE'S LECTURE.

Instructive Discourse on the Sun, Moon and Stars.

An illustrated lecture on the "Sun, Moon and Stars" was delivered by Dr. James E. Talmage in the museum hall at the University last evening. The lecture, which was given under the auspices of the University Engineering society of the University, was attended by several hundred students and townspeople. As usual the doctor presented his subject in a very comprehensive manner, and did so in a most interesting and choice bits of enlightening wit and humor. The illustrations, in addition to simplifying the lecture, were in and of themselves choice and valuable. Several views of the sun, showing its surface, its spots and surrounding vapors, were presented. Many views of the moon, stars, planets and comets were also displayed, which served to arouse curiosity and profound astonishment.

No friend to American party should permit this day to close until his name is on the registration books.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Dr. W. H. Hanchett wishes to announce that he will continue the practice of his brother, Dr. J. C. Hanchett, Office, 608 Progress building. Office hours and office telephone will remain the same. Residence and residence telephone will remain the same until November 1. Thereafter residence will be at the Wilson hotel, telephone 1953. Dr. J. C. Hanchett, who is residing at San Francisco, desires to thank his friends and patrons for past favors and commends to their confidence his brother, Dr. W. H. Hanchett, with whom he was formerly associated in practice in Omaha.

ADVERTISEMENT.

Republicans, Register Today.

If you are not registered you can't vote for Roosevelt. An entirely new registration this year. If in doubt as to where to register ring up Republican headquarters Bell 'phone 692 or Ind. 2781.

YOUNG HAS RESIGNED.

But No One Will Tell Why He Left the Library Board.

The fact just came to light yesterday that Alfalfa Young had on October 10 tendered to Mayor Morris his resignation of the position of president of the Salt Lake Free Library Board. The resignation was accepted last Saturday, after the Mayor had attempted in vain to induce President Young to reconsider his action. Mr. Young said that his resignation was tendered only after mature deliberation, but further that no explanation was offered. It is understood that the action is due to some sort of friction on the board, but as to the nature of the difficulty neither Mr. Young nor the other members would give the slightest intimation for publication. One member of the board admitted that something was wrong and declared that so far as he was personally concerned the resignation was a very much regretted outcome. Mr. Young, he said, was a very capable man in the position, having a wide knowledge of books and being energetic and attentive to his duties. Mayor Morris has not yet indicated whom he will appoint to fill the vacancy.

Dynamite Used to Wreck Saloon

Bartender Terribly Injured and Several People in Building Have Narrow Escapes.

Special to The Tribune.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 17.—A saloon at Derby, Nev., which is owned and operated by the construction company which is building the canal for the Government, was dynamited yesterday. The result is that the building is nearly demolished, and the bartender, Harry Kelly, lies in a company hospital, terribly injured by flying boards and glass. Dynamite was placed under the corner of the building and directly under the bar. Several people were in the saloon at the time and their escape is miraculous. For months Derby has been a hot-bed of crime and disorder, and the present attempt at wholesale murder is but one of many which have followed each other in rapid succession. The case is being investigated. No arrests have been made.

Burnett's Vanilla Leaves a good taste in the mouth. It is pure and wholesome. Don't be cheated with cheap goods.

MADMAN STILL FREE.

Officers Have No Trace of the Patient Who Escaped From Provo.

Nothing has yet been learned concerning the whereabouts of Thomas Murchie, the man who escaped from the insane asylum at Provo some time ago and who gave the officers a merry chase Sunday evening. Guards Bonnett and Deputy Sheriff Sharp went to Bountiful yesterday afternoon in hope of locating the fugitive, but returned last night empty-handed. Murchie at one time lived in Bountiful and it was thought he might return there. The Sheriff's men are keeping a close watch upon the house on Grape street where Murchie stopped, and if he returns to the place he will be taken into custody. Nothing was seen or heard of the man yesterday, and the officers are completely at sea as to his whereabouts.

Every itching disease of the skin quickly cured by Doan's Ointment.

To Photographers.

An expert worker on Velox papers will give a demonstration at C. E. Savage's store, 12 and 14 Main, on Tuesday, October 18, from 3 to 5 p. m. All are invited.

BLUE POINT PERFECTO CIGARS

Sold strictly on their merit. Whitaker & Dallas, manufacturers.

ADVERTISEMENT.

Republicans, Register Today.

If you are not registered you can't vote for Roosevelt. An entirely new registration this year. If in doubt as to where to register ring up Republican headquarters Bell 'phone 692 or Ind. 2781.

Charity Card Party.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon occurs the charity card party to be given by the Council of Jewish Women.

HOTEL HALLS.

Corner Third South and State. The management of the Hotel Halls announce the completion of New Annex, which will allow the accommodation of many more guests. The hotel has been renovated throughout. Rooms single and en suite. American and European. Inquire for rates.

BLUE POINT PERFECTO CIGARS

Sold strictly on their merit. Whitaker & Dallas, manufacturers.

WILL ENTERTAIN WOLF.

B'nai B'rith Looking for President of the Grand Lodge.

Hon. Simon Wolf, the well-known attorney of Washington, D. C., will arrive in the city over the Rio Grande this afternoon at 1:30 and pass the rest of the afternoon as the guest of B. F. Pelkott.

Mr. Wolf is president of the constitutional grand lodge and one of the foremost men in the councils of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith. In Washington he wields considerable influence and has enjoyed the friendship of some of the leading statesmen of the country. Personally he is a delightful man to meet, and is looked upon as one of the foremost men among the Jewish citizens of the United States. He was born in Hunsweiler, Bavaria, October 18, 1832; graduated from the Ohio law college, Cleveland, in 1851; has lived in Washington thirty-five years. Was Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia, 1867-78; Minister Extraordinary to the United States, 1878-81; and was the American Jew as Patriot, Soldier and Citizen.

He will attend a meeting of the local lodge, to which all the members have been urged to attend. The committee of reception is composed of H. Cohn, J. Morris, W. G. Watters, H. Hahn, and William Graupe.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases also, resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly, and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by all leading druggists.

THIS HOLD-UP HAD A RAZOR

Gun and Fist Also Used.

Slashes His Victim's Coat Sleeve, Knocks Him Down and Gets $200.

M. H. Rawson Met Him on Ninth East and Shows Badly Cut Clothes to Prove It.

Hold up by a man who assaulted him with a razor, knocked him down with his fist and then pulled a gun on him and robbed him of something over $200, M. H. Rawson, an insurance agent from Des Moines, Ia., presented a decidedly bedraggled appearance when he returned to the Kenyon hotel about 11 o'clock last night, after a short trip into the suburbs to transact some business with a policyholder of his company. The back of Rawson's overcoat was covered with mud, where he had lain on the ground; his hat and face were also bespattered, and in his left sleeve were a half-dozen or more slashes, made by the razor. These cuts went through his overcoat, undershirt and shirt sleeves, and in one place the skin of his arm was slightly scratched.

Sprung From Behind Tree.

According to the story told by Mr. Rawson, he was walking on Ninth East street, between Second and Third South, when a man sprang in front of him from behind a tree and told him to throw up his hands. Rawson did not obey at once, and the hold-up man made a pass at him with a razor which he held in his right hand. Rawson held up his left arm to ward off the blow with the razor and at the same time attempted to strike the man with his right. A brief battle ensued, which ended by Rawson being knocked to the ground by a blow from the hold-up man's fist, he having evidently dropped the razor. The highwayman then drew from his left-hand coat pocket a revolver, which he held in his right hand, and Mr. Rawson, who was holding the razor, threw it away. The hold-up man then told Rawson to get up and follow him. Rawson complied, and the hold-up man led him to a small building, where he made a sound, and then ran to Third South street, where he turned westward. Rawson retraced his steps to the place at which he had just called on business, the residence of W. H. Jones, 232 East Third South street, and Mr. Jones notified the police by telephone of what had occurred. A detachment was sent in search of the hold-up man, but at present no trace of him had been found.

Believes He Was a Negro.

Rawson says the man was over six feet tall and weighed fully 200 pounds, but it was so dark that he could not tell whether he was a white man or a negro, nor could he describe his clothing. He suspects, however, that the fellow is a negro, and he says he followed him to his lodging-house in Ogden a week ago, having probably become aware that he was in the habit of carrying money on his person. Rawson says that he collects from $20 to $50 a week for his company and, in consequence, he has been offered several hundred dollars that he cannot conveniently dispose of over night. He is a brother of J. E. Rawson, a well-known insurance agent, and is engaged on life insurance company.

ADVERTISEMENT.

Republicans, Register Today.

If you are not registered you can't vote for Roosevelt. An entirely new registration this year. If in doubt as to where to register ring up Republican headquarters Bell 'phone 692 or Ind. 2781.

Frederick Warde

Will deliver his fascinating Shakespearean recital, "The Wit, the Lessons, the Characters of Shakespeare" (better than any play), at Barratt hall, Wednesday, October 19, at 9 p. m. Admission, 25 cents.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Caleb D. Brinton to Oregon Short Line Railroad company, .38 acre in section 26, township 2 south, range 1 west, . . . $1,200
J. A. Brinton to Oregon Short Line Railroad company, .96 acre in section 13, township 2 south, range 1 west, . . . 576
Peter H. Brinton to Peter Miller, .5 acres in section 8, township 2 south, range 1 east, . . . 768
Albert S. Corlies to Robert E. Corlies, part of lot 2, block 22, plat A, Alex. Beveridge to Henry Brough, .0137 acre, northeast corner of lot 2, block 15, Orson Pratt to Emily S. Rolapp, .1 acre, block 1, Pratt subdivision, . . . 1
Virginia Elmer to Robert E. Corlies, part of lot 2, block 22, plat A, . . . 80
Louise B. Willey to National Bank of the Republic, 28.13x9.6 feet in lot 12, block 18, plat A, . . . 1
Emil S. Rolapp to Susan Pratt, lot 10, block 1, Pratt subdivision, . . . 150

A POPULAR LAMENT.

Where Would Society Be If One Was Judged by the Sins of Others?

"O, I tried one of those hair tonics some time ago and it never did me a bit of good."

That's what many people are saying today when they refuse Herculene. It would be as sensible to say "I never travel on a railroad because I often see collisions mentioned in the papers."

Nebrow's Herculene is specially made to destroy the germ that is living on the scalp. It is there for the sole purpose of ridging the hair of this parasitic growth, after which the hair grows as nature intended.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 5c in stamps for sample to The Herculene Co., Detroit, Mich.

...AMUSEMENTS...

SALT LAKE THEATRE—Frederick Warde and Katharine Rogers in "Salomambo" in five acts, by Stanislaus Stange. GRAND THEATRE—"On the Bridge at Midnight," a comedy-drama in four acts, by William L. Rogers.

"Salomambo" is something sumptuous. It is a masterpiece of scenic art. Its scenes are beautiful. It exhibits much Carthaginian ornamentation and some barbaric scenes. There is a freshness and a charm in all that is on canvas. The scenic painter has done well.

We are told that the costumes and the properties are faithful reproductions of clothes and articles of the time and place. We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.

We can see, therefore, that some men and women were good clothes light along in Carthage, though not much of it Carthage, you doubtless remember, had a warm climate, especially when the Romans were around, and flimsy gowns were probably all that were needed for the ladies, and coats of mail for the men. We are also shown by the equipment that the well-to-do people of Carthage were not much different from the gentlemen of our own time, in style, in taste, in the modesty of the manners, in the quality of the food, and in the quality of the wine.